The Chinese symbol on the front cover is "Bien Hsing," and means metamorphosis or change in shape. The sun in which it is placed has often been considered as a symbol of the source of power, strength, or direction by many ancient religions. With the change from old Claremont Central High School to Hickory High School next year, the impending "Bien Hsing", or physical change of our school is evident. The sun is a symbol of the strength and direction that could perhaps lead the students in new directions and "shapes" also.

Year of Transition Reflects Changing of Values, Ideals

OLD CLAREMONT CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL — NEW HICKORY HIGH SCHOOL; with this as the center of importance for many educators, teachers, and students during this year of transition from old to new, a move towards other changes was also evident. Perhaps the proposition of change from an old school to a new school helped to quicken this movement or make it stand out clearer. Whether this is true or not, the fact remains that Hickory High, the students, were undergoing a silent and often not-so-silent revolution of values, ideals, and attitude. This movement was nothing new — it had been taking place all over the country for quite a while. But the particular setting of our school, its background, type of people, and special differences made this era of embracement became necessary. The threatening of the established put each student in a position of decision — to carry on an ideal at a harder pace than ever or to take up a different way. Consciously or unconsciously, each metamorphosis unique.

What was the common denominator of this re-adjustment of values? Not necessarily change, or even new ideals, for many chose to further embrace a more well-known way of life. The factor of the year was not revolution, resistance, or dissent for all, or even for most — the factor was one word — embracement. Whether it be to "Hail to the Varsity," James Taylor, new clothes, drugs, patriotism, ecology, sports, or simply "good old" apathy, the student displayed whole-hearted embracement. With the challenge of old ways with new ways, this person moved toward one of these highly generalized paths. During the school year, 1971-1972, each pupil was caught in her or his particular path, stage, mixture, or preference of these two.

ESCAPE — an age-old part of life, took both new and familiar paths this year. Drugs became a realistic, though often subdued, part of the Hickory campus. To Mr. Miller, the police department, concerned parents, and officials, this showed itself as a growing problem. Many students also held this idea; others considered it a luxury, necessity, or "kick" that was acceptable to use. Alcohol continued to be held in importance by many as a better way of enjoyment. Considering drugs as a new way to obtain the same end as alcohol, certain pupils considered reality necessary, liveable, or enjoyable, and abstained from any type of outside method of freedom.

IDEALS took new and various paths during the year. This was obviously brought out with the traditional Homecoming festivities. With the theme of the parade as, "You've Come a Long Way, America," clubs went to work to produce a float or unit which would best show this ideal. The Chorus float portrayed several Hickory High Red Tornadoe players saluting a human replica of the famous flag-raising incident on Iowa Jima during World War II. Deeming this float as best showing the spirit of the Homecoming theme, the judges gave the Chorus the first place award. Showing its concern for America in a slightly different method, ZPG entered a display of pedaling students with the sponsor riding in a horse-drawn buggy.

They thus showed that America still "had a long way to go." Personal and group ideals were brought out as these and other organizations decided upon the image they would present.

Raising of School "Spirit" Develops High Emotional Level

SCHOOL SPIRIT — that energy which causes noise at sports games and helps the team to gain victory. Assorted means were incorporated in raising the "school spirit" at Hickory High during the 1971-72 sports season. Weekly pep rallies featuring the fiery Blake Watts and other parents concerned with helping to pep up the school resulted in raising the emotional level of many students in preparation for the coming battle.

In spite of rumors that the Catawba bonfire, and occasionally alcohol to support the great Red Tornadoes. The finale of Hickory's efforts ended with the game against North Forsyth. In spite of the Great Kazoo Band, Victory Bell, several fights among opposing players, and various obscenities yelled by the crowd, Hickory tearfully left in defeat.

Although this "spirit" occasionally directed itself at other targets besides athletic competition, causing destruction, certain students sought other ways of using their senses for enjoyment. Such pastimes as sensitivity sessions after lunch, music, art, meditation, reading, religion, and communication between students of ideals, trends, and events became a greater part of the campus. These brought a different type of "school spirit" to the mixture of personalities on campus.

County Pollution Control Board would cancel the event, Hickory High was allowed to hold the annual pre-Homecoming bonfire. The holocaust sported two outhouses, an old boat, and truckloads of paper, wood, and trash; all of which was reduced to a smoldering heap of rubble in accompaniment to the yells and cheers of bystanders.

The climax of all of this preparation was the weekly football game, at which coaches and players pitted their skills against the opponent. They were in turn backed by the enthusiastic crowd, prepared by cheerleaders, Blake Watts,

TRANSITION — the move from old to new. As one moves around the campus of Claremont Central High, several things are obvious. One is antiquity: old auditorium seats, falling plaster, worn-out stairs, old-fashioned iron gate-entrances, and huge old trees. Another thing one notices is the ground, or that part of this level which can be seen. The majority is covered with a substance resembling unprocessed fertilizer, more commonly named trash. Occasionally during the year, some brave student would take the initiative or receive a command from Mr. Styers to take up a broom and begin an attack on the mess. But the fight usually ended in hopeless defeat. How could such a small force conquer some forty years of litter in various stages of decomposition, with more being added each day by "old" students of Claremont Central? At other times students would get the urge to dispose of trash, grass, and anything else in the way, and would simply start a "little fire" in the nearest trash can or on the closest hill. Lack of concern for the campus was shown by many students simply by littering, breaking of light bulbs in bathrooms, fires, and other acts of destruction.

But in the coming year, there will be no old auditorium seats, no falling plaster, no worn-out steps, no old-fashioned iron-gate entrances, and no ancient trees. Everything will be new; the seats, the steps, the entrances, the grass, and the trees. Maybe even the litter, the broken lights, the fires, and other acts of "fun" will be fresh. Maybe not. Of course not all pupils did show or will show disrespect or unconcern for the campus. Some persons this year were disrespectful, others concerned, others apathetic; most were a mixture of all three. The future will be a new story, or so they say.

Future Holds New Campus, Curriculum for Hickory High

NEXT YEAR. 1972-73, there will be a New Hickory High with all the trimmings: new building, new campus, new curriculum. Supposedly as Claremont Central changes faces, changes in the human part of the school will also take place. Old Mr.

Miller will become new Mr. Miller, old teachers and old teaching methods will become new teachers and new teaching methods, and most importantly of all, old students with old ways will become new students with new ways. Whether these occur or not will have the greatest effect on the face of the school, 'because the only real part of any school is the human part. The completion of this change, of course, will occur — won't it?

STUDENT LIFE

Harmonious race relations, winning football season, extension of summer into fall and fall into winter, new directions for those interested in morality, novel pastimes, unconventional Homecoming, no French exchangee, Elaine Pope spends summer in Austria, Bolivian joins H.H.S. campus, snow causes confusion in administration, new school becomes center of interest — all of these elements combined to make the student's life unique.

Summer's unique feature this year was that, while many youths followed traditional pursuits, some broke with the patterns of the past and forged ahead in novel directions. The traditional activities were almost wholly connected with either water or work, but the new ones involved working either with what was inside one's own head or working with those who were underprivileged. Trips to the beach began before classes were released and continued through Thanksgiving. These were common denominators with a large majority of students partaking in at least one. All these events gave depth to the students.

Student Body and Community Response

When fall is taken as a whole, the most significant feature becomes the resurgence of school spirit and team pride. The traditional summer sports continued well on into the fall, due to the unseasonably warm weather that held through Thanksgiving, although a brief snow flurry on Nov. 11 gave the school a temporary carnival air. The football team recovered from a bad start and went on to win a berth in the state semi-finals. With the move to the new school imminent many students participated in planning committees. Fall drifted into winter as student's assignments increased.

School spirit, which was at an all time high, dominated Homecoming this year. The Friday afternoon parade was marked by an absence of floats, but many groups had other types of entries. The decision to hold the parade was made Friday morning in spite of impending rain. Out of the small field of entries in the float division the Chorus float was chosen as the best, with the Junior Class and the Band occupying the runnerup positions. The game was marred by rain, but the victory erased all memories of this as students attended dances at the high school and Club Dynamic. The game was the most successful in the senior's memories.

Influence of Austrian Culture Affects Exchange Student

Adjusting to a new and different way of life was one of Elaine Pope's major tasks as she began her three month stay in Austria on the A.F.S. exchange program. Elaine came to know Austrian farm life well, since she lived with the Fodermary family on a farm near Hargelsburg. Knowing little of the German language was at first a hinderance, but this gap was bridged by the closeness that soon developed between Elaine and her family. She found the culture and lifestyle of the U.S. and the much older country of Austria to be very different. Elaine's life in Austria gave her understanding of farm life, German, and people in general.

Carrying out the belief that new experiences are a basic part of the growth and learning processes, the band and choral departments made trips over the summer. The band represented the state of North Carolina in the International Lion's Club Parade in Las Vegas, Nevada. The chorus was selected by Concerts Abroad to go on a concert tour of Europe. Serving as ambassadors of good will from the United States, the choral members were able to see much of the continent. The opportunity to go on the trips was open to all department members. Only the willingness to work toward the financial and musical goals needed for successful trips was required.

If political action was desired, a Moratorium on the Vietnamese War was organized. Setting up a drug center involved some students; others searched for identity through Young Life. A transcendental meditation course in Hickory offered another outlet for exploration. Many students also managed to express personal philosophy by mode of dress and expression of opinion.

Murphy has found out at Dennison Machine and Tool, where he works at a second shift schedule.

Jobs after school provided many students with the opportunity to become involved with society at large, as well as, a chance to earn money and gain business experience. Many students chose to fill the standard part time jobs traditionally offered to high school students. These included bagging groceries, ticket taking, and many other jobs in the service field. Some members of the campus became interested in jobs with heavy industry although age acted as a restraint because no one under eighteen can work with machinery. Public service and blue collar work also attracted a few to their ranks. Finally, one group, such as the medical volunteers, chose to seek employment in the area they had chosen as a profession. All jobs, however, taught tolerance of others and thus possessed some amount of carry over value beyond the material ones offered by money and work experience.

SMASHING A DEFENDER aside, Jimmy Propst clears the way for Mike Robinson to make his cut for a long gain. Mike led Hickory and the conference in rushing with over a thousand yards in the regular season.

Tornadoes Rush to Division 7 Title With Overall 7-3 Season

The 1971 varsity football season, although a great success, got off to a faltering start with two consecutive losses. Against Ashbrook in the opener, Hickory had more total offense, but a lack of key defensive plays let the Greenwave slip by. Following a loss to West Mecklenburg, the first victory was scored in a 33-20 win over West Charlotte. The running of Mike Robinson, who amassed a total of 1,081 yards, and Jimmy Propst made the Tornadoes a formidable rushing team throughout the season. By holding the Asheville Cougars to only a touchdown, the second win of the season was scored with a balanced defensive and offensive attack. In the next game against East Mecklenburg, the Tornadoes for the second time in the season gained more yards than their opponent, yet lost, 21-13.

However, this was the Tornadoes last regular season loss as they then went on to win their remaining five games. The Tornadoes harnessed Olympics running attack and shut them out in a 17-0 victory. South Mecklenburg did not stand a chance as Hickory dominated the game from the outset to trounce the Sabres 43-13. The following two victories over Hunter Huss and Garinger almost wrapped up the conference title. The game with Huss was a tough defensive battle with a Pat Barger field goal spelling the difference in Hickory's favor. The Tornado defensive unit also came through the following week for a crucial 14-12 win over Garinger. Key defensive play by Carson Copeland and Karl Thomas led the Tornadoes to the victory that clinched a tie for the division title. The final game was just a formality as Hickory rolled into Charlotte and over Independence by a 41-13 margin. This left Hickory as the Division 7 4-A champs with a 5-1 conference record.

"LAST CHANCE!" exclaims Coach Barger as he and Mike Everett hurriedly plan a final drive.

"TAKE IT, QUICK!" Mike Everett wheels back and hands the ball to halfback Mike Robinson, who veers to his left and rapidly accelerates toward the outside behind blocking of his counterpart, Jimmy Propst.

"TWENTY, THIRTEEN, HUT!" Quarterback Mike Everett calls signals as the Tornadoes intently wait to execute a play in the game against West Mecklenburg. West hung on to win the second game of the season.

Championship Drive Halted by Awesome North Forsyth

AMID ROARS FROM the Hickory crowd, end Chip Huffman stretches and latches on to an Everett pass despite tight defense. The reception continued for a long gain that lead to one of six scores.

With tremendous momentum and a desire for revenge, Hickory entered the Southwestern Conference 4-A championship against Gastonia Ashbrook and came out victorious. Near the end of a close first half, Pat Barger kicked a field goal to give the Tornadoes a 17-14 halftime lead. The second half was dominated by Hickory with superb running by Mike Robinson, who gained over 100 yards, and the Tornado defense that permitted only one more Ashbrook score. Thus, Hickory won the game by a convincing 37-22 margin. The following week, Hickory went to Winston-Salem to meet the North Forsyth Vikings in the state 4-A semi-finals. The first half was an offensive duel with Robinson and Everett pacing the Tornadoes to a 20-14 half-time lead. However, the Vikings played a strong second half and completely stifled Hickory's offense. They went on to win, 35-20, and end Hickory's championship hopes.

Over-powering Rushing Attack Paces J.V.'s to Championship

FIRING INSPIRATION into his team, Coach Larry Wittenberg rallies his players in a key situation. With such spirit Mr. Wittenberg led the junior varsity to an unblemished conference record.

AGILELY EVADING opponents, Michael Williams races for the goal and leaves a defender.

A mere three points kept the junior varsity squad from an undefeated season. These disappointments came in the first two games against Ashbrook and West Mecklenburg. In each game Hickory scored a touchdown in the final minutes that would have won the game had not odd penalties called the scores back. However, the following week the junior Tornadoes came back from a deficit to defeat Asheville 20-14 for their first win. After rolling past Asheville and smothering East Mecklenburg 26-0, Hickory ran into tough competition against Olympic but won, 30-27.

From here on out, key running by Dana Reed and Willie Sullivan along with strong defense from Bill Wittenberg, Blake Watts, and Dennis Slagle, kept opponents from getting near Hickory. Against South Mecklenburg and Hunter Huss, identical victories of 26-0 were scored. After soundly beating Garinger 21-14, a powerful 355 yard running attack pushed the Tornadoes past Independence 35-14. This win gave them the 1971 conference title.

Three Impressive Conference Victories Highlight Year

With the first game, a win against St. Stephens, Hickory had already assured at least an equal record to the preceding year. However, the glory was short lived as the Tornadoes lost a pair of games to both Olympic and Asheville. A small comeback was made when a 59-46 victory was scored over St. Stephens. Then with a jump back into 4-A competition, Hickory found the going rough. The first round of the schedule saw only one more victory, a 62-53 win against Independence.

The second round of play opened at Ashbrook where a late Hickory surge was thwarted. However, the subsequent game against Garinger proved to be the strongest game for the Tornadoes during the season. It featured excellent scoring and rebounding by Rick Barnes, Mike Heard, and Randy Crawley. Following this, back to back losses were suffered against South Mecklenburg and West Charlotte. Hickory again rose to peak performance and a 57-54 win at Hunter Huss. The season ended on two close losses, and thus the Tornadoes closed the season with an overall 5-15 record. The conference mark of 3-9 showed improvement but was far short of reaching tournament play.

"DON'T FOUL!" exclaims Coach Mark Lyerly to the starting five as he explains the strategy for the closing seconds of a tight game. Coach Lyerly led the team to five wins and gave his youthful squad vital experience.

J.V.'s Climax Year With Co-Conference Title, 19-4 Record

After exploding to a fantastic start of nine consecutive wins, the junior varsity basketball team managed to keep up the winning pace and capture the conference co-championship. Although a relatively short squad, the junior Tornadoes made up for it with their quickness. The keys to most of their wins were fast breaks and tough defense that converted many steals into points. The potent offensive attack was spearheaded by John and Willie Sullivan, with 17 and 14 point averages respectively. John provided perpetually strong play around the basket and triggered many fast breaks to Willie, who was constantly beating the opponents down court. Outside shooting power was boosted by Dana Reed and Edney Hudson, while John Saxton was a consistent rebounder. These five led the Tornadoes to a regular season 17-3 record in which they averaged 65 points per game compared to their opponents 57. A perfect record was accumulated on the home court, with the only three regular season losses coming on opposing courts. From the opening 64-49 romp against St. Stephens to the closing 54-50 win at Independence, the J.V.'s controlled the tempo and dominated most all of their opponents.

The brilliant regular season play was well complemented by the junior varsity's showing in the tournament. In the first game they demolished Ashbrook in a 76-56 rout. This was the third victory over the Greenwave during the season and advanced Hickory to the District 7 semifinals. The next game was a close overtime win against West Mecklenburg in which Hickory's hustle decided the game. The final contest was a disappointing 75-59 loss to awesome North Mecklenburg, whose height proved too much to overcome. Nonetheless, Hickory had compiled an amazing overall 19-4 record and satisfying success for Coach Craft.

Wrestlers Find Competition Tough in Three - Win Season

START WITH a cross-body, no- let's try to stack him. Jim Hefner, captain of the wrestling squad, uses a variety of moves on his Newton-Conover opponent en route to a fine 14-2 record, tops on the team.

The 1971-1972 wrestling team began almost every match with a severe disadvantage, not enough wrestlers to fill each weight class. This problem caused the Tornados to start each match at a 12-0 deficit, since two classes were forfeited, and gave most opponents an insurmountable lead. Despite this, Hickory did better than in previous years, winning three and tying one. At the beginning of the season two impressive wins were scored over West Charlotte, 39-35, and East Lincoln, 49-21. The rest of the season boasted little team success with only a 36-24 win against Newton and a 33-33 tie with Hunter Huss.

Perhaps more outstanding than team outcome were the individual performances. Among the best were these: Jim Hefner, 14-2; Tony Barnes, 13-4; Ray Franklin, 13-4; and Leonard Scott, 12-5-1. However because of the perpetual forfeits, such individual successes were just not enough to make Hickory a top conference contender.

SMIRKS AND PERPLEXED GRINS trickle across Jeanie Miller's face and her hair succumbs to a persistent shower as she perseveres through the weather to cheer the Tornados' championship team.

Determination and co-operation led the cheerleading squads in trying to infiltrate the student body with school spirit. Both varsity and junior varsity groups made valiant efforts in following the athletic teams through a successful football and lengthy basketball season. The varsity cheerleaders started their year off by going to cheerleading camp in the summer, where they received "excellent" ratings. They continued their work by conducting a toothbrush sale to raise money for new uniforms. Throughout the year, bulletin boards and pep-posters were continuously produced by them.

The junior varsity girls undertook their high school apprenticeship well in boosting J.V. football and basketball teams to championships. They also took on the task of decorating the gym before games with colorful posters. Both squads followed their teams with perpetual pep through regular season and play-off competition.

ACTIVITIES

Bald Head Island project, new voting system, improved parking conditions, student exchange program, "Letters to the Editor", survey results, "Spring Supplement", student dramas, inductions, banquets, trash can sale, grass-planting, Library Club convention, Europe and Las Vegas summer trips, new Bolivian exchange student, FBLA National Secretary — these were made possible by active students as well as by active school organizations and staffs.

Asphalt Improves Grove Parking

Active in student government, the STUDENT COUNCIL and HOMEROOM REPRESENTATIVES provided an opportunity for students to voice their opinions and complaints. Through participation in many time-consuming tasks, the Homeroom Representatives assisted the upper house. Involvement in a student exchange program with St. Stephens, improving Grove parking conditions, and serving at football banquets enabled the members to remain active throughout the year. Hickory High's "Honor Council" conducted many major activities. The Council directed a statewide drive to provide funds for the purchase of Bald Head Island. Because of certain complications the drive was abandoned. At Christmas, the Council arranged for a Santa Claus and his elves to visit each classroom. With money raised from the Ugliest Man on Campus contest, they donated to the Phil Hughston Fund.

The LOG and TWIG staffs developed new approaches in order to unite the student body. LOG STAFF designed the SPRING SUPPLEMENT after dropping various traditions. Because of these additional pages, the staff changed their layout form and edited a more accurate yearbook. The LOG became one of the top twenty yearbooks as a result of the Medalist rating. "Letters to the Editor" and survey results were devices used by the TWIG STAFF to enable students to express their beliefs. Judged on appearance, content, editing, and leadership the TWIG accepted an All-American rating from NSPA.

LEAVES' CSPA rating and RADIO-T.V.'s annual Radio Day helped highlight the staffs' year of service. The LEAVES magazine permitted students to display their talents. Outstanding poems, art, short stories, and commentaries were published in the magazine. With the aid of the Data Processing classes, the 1972 Student Directory was the most precise ever compiled. Taking over the controls of WIRC, the Radio-T.V. Staff broadcast their annual Radio Day. As a result of their handling of the advertisements, the staff sent two members to a Radio-T.V. Institute, while remaining funds were used for new equipment.

Award banquets and private inductions began the year for members of the QUILL and SCROLL SOCIETY and NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY. In order to raise money, the annual Q. & S. Beauty Pageant was held. The club sent delegates to the Southern Inter-scholastic Press Association in Athens, Georgia. National Honor Society members were honored at a tea. Beginning their involvement with the club, they awaited the announcement concerning their participation as a Junior Marshal.

CONSIDERING business affairs, President Charlie Brady asks for opinions and suggestions.

COMPLETING another project, Homeroom Representatives repair holes in the Grove.

DISCUSSING BALD HEAD ISLAND reports, Student Council President, Perry Hodge, informs members of the assembly about suggestions given for means of raising money in order to make the purchase.

TAKING advantage of school rights to vote, students receive their ballots from Steven Chesser.

Las Vegas, Europe — Summer Trips

Concert series program, raffle tickets for a 1960 Corvair, and an auction were the sources of funds for the Band and Chorus's trips to Las Vegas and Europe this summer.

The BAND was invited to represent North Carolina at the LIONS International Convention. They departed from Hickory on two chartered buses with a professional tour guide making all of the arrangements. After touring the Painted Desert, Petrified Forest, and the Grand Canyon, the Band arrived in Las Vegas where they spent two nights. A day of rest preceded their participation in the parade where they competed with 106 degree temperature. In spite of being one of the smallest bands there, the majorettes won a first place for their performance. The Stage Band was honored by playing for the N.C. Delegation at the Sands Hotel. Later in the year, the Band performed for civic activities including Christmas parties, the Inter-Club Workshop, and three concerts. The Band anticipated marching at half-time in the Shrine Bowl football game. Due to weather conditions, however, the trip was cancelled.

As the funds continued to grow, the CHORUS members readied themselves for the long-awaited trip abroad. Before leaving, they conducted a concert at the Memorial Gardens with 800 people in attendance. The Chorus members travelled to Charlotte and then to New York where they boarded the Sabena Belgian Airliner bound for Europe. With music written by American composers, they prepared for the concerts given in England, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, and France. After four days of sightseeing and visiting an ancient Cathedral, they left Brussels en route to New York. Throughout the remainder of the year, the Choral students busied themselves as they performed various concerts. The Varsity Singers entertained at events such as the District Library Convention and Awards Day. Local students auditioned to attend the choral clinic at Mars Hill. Twelve representatives sponsored Hickory High at the clinic held last autumn. Consisting of students from the entire state, the purpose of this event was to help the choral students further develop their musical talents.

YULETIDE F.B.L.A. MEETING IS CONDUCTED BY Chyrel East, National Secretary.

Calenders — Main Money Activity

As Christmas time rolled around F.B.L.A. members prepared for their annual holiday party. With their major objective being a contribution to the Salvation Army's Empty Stocking Fund, they sought other donations as well as their own. The yearly activities for maintaining a well-balanced treasury were through the sales of linen calenders and decorative telephone directories.

After becoming the North Carolina state president, Chyrel East further campaigned for the office of national secretary at the convention in Miami, Florida. Aided by campaign manager, Susan Compton, Chyrel obtained the position.

COOPERATIVE OFFICE OCCUPATIONS, trained students in the field of office employment. Typing, shorthand, and bookkeeping were taught in the first period C.O.O. class. The students also learned the basics of how to operate ordinary office machinery. From a school classroom to part-time employment, the girls "got a taste of" the business world. Throughout the year C.O.O. assisted F.B.L.A. in their projects and activities.

D.E.C.A., a widespread vocational program offered introductory training in the field of store management, selling, merchandising, displaying, and advertising. With the assistance of the Petree Oil Company, the Distributive Education class took over a Gulf gas station located on Highland Avenue. Before the opening, the members occupied themselves by painting, cleaning up, and making the station more attractive. Reasons for the project were for the benefit to the students and to raise money for the club's activities. Early in the year the students attended the D.E. district contest where three H.H.S. members won first place in their specific category.

Opportunities in such areas as food, health, furniture, and textiles were made available to students by the Hickory Chapter of VOCATIONAL INDUSTRIAL CLUBS OF AMERICA. V.I.C.A. participated in school community and regional activities. Through experience gained from facing problems of the business world, the members prepared for the field of their choice as they encountered the working life.

French Club Helps Prepare Banquet

Hickory High's A.F.S. and FRENCH clubs united for the second year for their annual International Weekend, later known as the "World-Wide Weekend". This affair was attended by approximately twenty-four exchange students. The exchangees lived in the homes of H.H.S. students. A banquet for the guests and a dance for the entire student body helped to launch the weekend.

At Christmas time the A.F.S. club went caroling to patients and staff members at the Richard Baker Hospital. Through the sale of chocolate bars, the club was able to finance various projects. Members spent several Saturday mornings in preparation of cookies that were shipped to servicemen in South Vietnam. Representing the United States abroad as an exchange student, Elaine Pope resided in Hargelsberg, Austria. In the meantime, Jorge Barrero came from Bolivia as an exchange student to the United States.

By selling candy the SPANISH club financed scholarships to four active members for a five weeks stay in Saltillo, Mexico. Last spring the club provided Spanish food and atmosphere at the Mexican fiesta. A diamond-shaped pinata made by the Spanish club members made an attractive display at the fiesta. The breaking of this figure highlighted the event.

Obeying the every commands of their masters, LATIN club members shined shoes, carried books, and sang on the fire escape in early April. They were auctioned off and the following day came to school in varied costumes. An olive race and a banana eating contest completed the banquet as well as Latin Week. The Yuletide season supplied the members with an afternoon of caroling and a holiday party afterwards at Dr. Goodman's house.

With a membership growing larger and larger, Z.P.G. or ZERO POPULATION GROWTH was formed to combat the increasing population, erosion, and pollution problems dealing with land, water, and air. Grass-planting around the campus became one of the major projects of the club. This act helped to prevent erosion and added greenery to the school lawn. Presentations by ecology speakers, letter writing campaigns, and making posters and exhibits were other purposeful activities. The organization planned future projects for the new high school.

Waste basket selling was a newly formed fund raising activity begun this year by the JUNIOR JAYCEES. Decorative trash cans were ordered and distributed. Many students attended the semi-formal Christmas Dance which also added to the treasury. The bicycle safety program and the paper drive were carried out for the second year. Donations were again contributed to the Salvation Army's Empty Stocking Fund as the Christmas season brought forth the opportunity to help the underprivileged children. Members also gave their time to ring bells and ask for donations at the Salvation Army kettles.

Contributing a Thanksgiving dinner to a local, needy family was an annual service provided by the JUNIOR CIVITAN CLUB. Members donated either money or food which was taken to the family on Thanksgiving Day. The main project of the group was in assisting the Civitan Club of Hickory in the selling of Claxton Fruitcakes. These door-to-door nightly excursions raised the money necessary for the club's various activities. Two Junior Civitan members, Melody Hicks and Rick Moretz, were elected to represent Hickory High in the annual Duncraggen Inn convention in Asheville.

Library Hosts Dist. Convention, Presented Well-Known Guest

Maintaining an efficient library required the assistance of concerned students as well as the school library. The H.H.S. Library Club was comprised of a group of dedicated students who served in the capacity of library assistants. Delegates were sent to district and state conventions in order to learn newer methods of utilizing the school library resources. Early in November the Southwestern Library club convention was held in the school auditorium. The distinguished Charlotte author, Harry Golden, was the guest speaker. He came after receiving an invitation from the district president, Pam Davis. The election of new district officers was of major importance to the guests.

PARTICIPATING IN ANNUAL LIBRARY Convention, the representatives from district clubs congregate in Hickory High School auditorium to conduct the election of new officers and attend to other business.

ACADEMICS

Independent study, Humanities, new copying machines, Flexible Modular System, mathematical equations, language lab breakdown, jet engines in Physics, push-ups for sophomores, summer school, accident in driver's training, new teachers in Science and Homemaking Departments, new curriculum studies, wall collages in art, new books for Math and Language Department, Industrial Arts projects, chemical equations, plays in Drama, research papers — all form Academics.

Independent Study, Research, Drama, Are Format for English

Novels, mythology, and essentials of grammar conspired the basics of English courses. Being offered for the third year, Humanities, a course designed to include areas such as journalism and the fine arts, brought new concepts to academically outstanding students. Junior English spanned into the world of poetry, speech, required reading, and research papers.

Serving students of English, the book store was established in order that paper back books could be made available. Independent study was a new innovation in the senior English division. It allowed each student to search in a field of his own interest by utilizing school and off campus facilities. Drama, a new addition, offered young actors instruction in the art of presentation and technical skills of acting.

Next year, "contemporary" English may be replaced by a new system which would enable students to explore a new facet of English each quarter. These would be selected from a compiled list including areas from the supernatural to contemporary American poetry.

COMPLETING long range senior project, Pat Little hastily looks for facts, opinions, and data by usage of complicated literary materials, encyclopedias, and complex theses to finish her research paper.

Lab Breakdown, New Books Preview Language Division

SOPHOMORES FIND THE LANGUAGE lab to be complexing yet helpful, as Debbie Sain and Robert Werner listen to phonics and sounds of Spanish I, which help make studying a language much easier.

Bringing the world closer to students was a main goal of the foreign language department. Armed with maps, films, and recordings, teachers engaged this arsenal to instruct students not only in a foreign language, but also in the history, customs, and life style of the country they were studying. New books also were added to the endless list of language equipment in the Spanish and French classes. The language lab, a unique system of individual learning facilities, went unused most of the year because of its breakdown. But by methods of substitution, foreign language teachers made up for the loss and still continued the goal of the foreign language department.

"DOES IT FIT?" Dale Brooks gives a scornful look at the class, as sophomore Chip Blackwelder, under the watchful eye of Spanish teacher Mrs. Barnhardt, places a sombrero on his head, which is all part of the fun.

SIMPLE EVERYDAY CONVERSATIONS CAN be difficult — especially when you're learning them in foreign languages, as Sherrie Martin and Beth Mitchell learn when they demonstrate their abilities.

Past and Present, Students Review the History of Man

Sociological, economical, and philosophical ideas were sought by concerned students as they ventured to solve the world's problems in the Social Studies Department this year. Through World History, Geography, Economics, and Sociology, HHS students gained an understanding of social concepts of people and the inter-dependence of nations. Students experienced difficulty with standardized tests in U.S. History. Film festivals, field trips, and research papers frequently occurred in the department. Debating against socialism, capitalism, peaceful Co-existence, disarmament, overpopulation, and nuclear warfare, students strove to understand worldly matters.

COLLABORATING NEW IDEAS FOR more interesting and informative classes, social studies instructors congregate after school to discuss the trials and tribulations of teaching history on a high school level.

Students Delve into Self-Expression Through the Fine Arts

NEEDED HOURS OF PRACTICE contribute to an improved orchestra, as Mr. Martin Bellar along with his students rehearse in order to establish an award winning high school orchestra, beneficial to the community.

Melodious sounds and harmonic tones of color brought about self expression in the Fine Arts Department. The HHS Band, Orchestra, Chorus, and Art Division strove to further the appreciation of culture among high school students. Perseverance, creativity, and mutual ability were the most important characteristics of the fine arts pupil. To give students of music and art opportunities to display their talents and training, numerous contests were held throughout the year. The band and chorus gave programs at Christmas and in spring, while art pupils decorated walls in the new building with a collage on the drug problem. Through these courses, students not only learned the techniques, but also gained a general understanding of beauty and form.

TIE-DYING adds color to sheers, hands, and equipment as demonstrated by art student.

THEOREMS, POSTULATES, COROLLARIES, PROOFS and just plain geometry are worked out as Miss Hefner, a recent addition to the Math Department, explains the complicated world of angles and circles.

Spanning the world of computations and calculations, math students found themselves subjected to a variety of mathematical fields. For the student not interested in college, general math and elementary algebra were offered. Numerous sophomores, armed with protractors and straightedges, delved into the world of geometric figures decorated with its theorems and angles. Algebra courses II, III, and Advanced Math I and II brought in other students interested in equations and graphs. New books were issued in geometry and Algebra classes in order that teachers might broaden the student's mathematical views with new ideas and new approaches. Trigonometry or general math, the HHS Math Department offered a complete array of mathematical concepts.

"NEED HELP IN MATH?" Miss Smyre explains a difficult equation to an Algebra III student, Richard Boyd, and gives him a little assistance in working it, so he will understand the way to figure out problems.

Students Greet Additions in Menagerie of Scientific Jungle

Microscopic observations, chemical formulas, and physic principles set the three phases of the Science Department. First year students began the preliminary stage by exploring the wonders of nature and finding out the various kinds of life. Chemistry, broken into two parts, consisted of a beginning course for juniors and an advanced course for seniors. Also offered to seniors was the complicated array of physical laws and physic principles. Physic pupils, this year, gained better understanding in jet propulsion by constructing a jet engine. Students welcomed three new teaching replacements who also brought along new concepts in science. Combining the three phases into one idea brought about a thorough high school background in these three branches of science.

Shorthand, Typing Expressed For the Business Minded Student

Setting the wheels of tomorrow's business world in to efficient action, the Commercial Department rendered a much needed service by endeavoring to produce not only fruitful students but competent clerical workers as well.

Commercial courses available to students included typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, basic business and data processing. By taking dictation, balancing a ledger or working with office manuscript, students gained skill in speed, accuracy, and neatness necessary for the business world. With the aid of memory bank calculators, electric typewriters, adding machines, and bookkeeping machines, business students' work was made easier. Stepping from the classroom into offices, students were given the opportunity and skill to become competent office personnel.

Copying Machine Adds To Many Outlets of Library Division

Housing books, microfilm, reference materials, and audio visual equipment, the library was utilized by teachers and students. Much new equipment was added as the department prepared to move to its larger quarters at the new high school. New microfilm and readers provided improved methods of study. Students saw a great increase in the library's collection of contemporary books, filmstrips, and added cassettes. Recorders enabled students to listen and take notes on the subject of their choice. A new copying machine was added to the library's facilities so that students could quickly reproduce material in various books.

As a result of the flex-mod system, usage of the facilities brought about evidence of independent study. The media center, in its second year, steadily increased audio visual and television services throughout the classrooms. The library's relaxed atmosphere enabled students to browse, study, and think while using the library to its capacity.

TAKING ADVANTAGE OF LIBRARY functions, students find that the newly acquired copying machine can be a most helpful and needed aid to provide convenient research for classroom studies and reports.

THUMBING THROUGH STACKS OF collected newspapers, junior Doris McHaney finds that these convenient library facilities are helpful for additional facts, data, and background for her research paper.

Push-ups and Needles Prepare Students for Practical World

SEWING PROJECTS ABSORB the attentions of Home Economic students as they busily concentrate on their work, despite the perplexity involved in a sewing machine and directions from their teacher.

Setting foundations for students wishing to prepare for a useful life, the Practical Arts Department provided the subject required. Adjusting the young girl to home needs, the Homemaking Division gave instructions in cooking, sewing, and home decorating. A new teacher, Mrs. Rhoney, was added to the personnel of the Homemaking Division. While girls were busily becoming homemakers, young men were becoming skilled craftsmen in Industrial Arts. Furniture classes were held at the shop in the new high school complex. Another facet of Practical Arts was Distributive Education where students, hoping to become salesmen, received background in their endeavor. The last division, Physical Education, brought stronger muscles and new spirits to out-of-shape sophomores.

CAREFUL fingers are one of the qualities needed in Woodworking as demonstrated by a student.

System: Controversial Ideas Expressed for the Curriculum are given to each particular committee chairman concerning his work.

A Flexible-Modular system and nine week courses were a few of the proposals offered by the newly-formed Hickory City School Curriculum Committee. Teachers and student representatives from Hickory High School, and the junior high schools met with state officials, school board members and men from higher educational institutes. Their purpose was to study and develop current trends, techniques, and procedures for revamping the teaching of secondary education.

Members were divided among ten subcommittees in order to study more closely each area of education. These areas were: language, social science, mathematics and science, cultural arts, career education, health safety and physical education, public personnel, student activities, publicity, and administration and scheduling. The chairmen of each committee formed a steering committee headed by the superintendent which passed final judgement on all proposals. The goals of each committee were to propose courses which would prepare students for college entrance, technological schools, and high school terminal education. Old and new courses were evaluated with the purpose of teaching students vocational skills more efficiently and improving personal and social development.

Each area of education offered various proposals which were then acted on by the steering committee. In the Math Department, various courses were discussed such as Business Math, Computer Math, and a course in probability theories. Courses considered the Social Science Department included the Studies of Women Through History, Worldwide Religion, Study of Ethnic Groups, and Marriage. Proposals made by the English Committee were forty nine-week courses such as Black Studies, the Research Paper, Creative Writing, Filmmaking, and the Supernatural. The Science Department suggested courses in Botany, Zoology, and Applied Physics.

The implementation of the proposals depended on the action of the Hickory City School Board.

DISCUSSING THEIR NEW SUBJECT, rising sophomores Christie Porter and David Helton find that summer school biology and their coming year at HHS are controversial matters during mid-morning break.

Ironically, one driver's training car was wrecked by a vacation attendant while serviced. Sleeping students arrived at 7:00 a.m. classes every morning weeks. Pupils underwent reaction peripheral vision tests, and judgment tests in hours of classroom work. Within six hours of on-the-road students practiced road turns, signals and parking which produced driving habits for the

School Board Maintains Cooperation Within School System

Debates, discussions, and decisions involving the educational system for the Hickory City School System filled the nightly agenda on the second Tuesday of every month for the nine members of the school board. Standard duties included drawing up the yearly budget, designing and approving curriculum, hiring additional teachers to fill empty positions, constructing the school calendar, and coping with all the various major and minor problems which presented themselves during the school year. In addition to these routine jobs, the forth coming change from the old Claremont Central building to the new Hickory High School, made it necessary for these officials to begin creating a new and improved curriculum system to fit in with the new building design. Although faced with problems and headaches, these officials constructed a better, well-rounded educational program for the students.

PRAYING FOR AN AFFIRMATIVE answer, Mrs. Poats begs and beseeches Mr. Miller for the necessary written permission, which must bear his genuine "John Hancock," to proceed with an educational class trip.

Principal Acts as Supervisional Advisor For Student — Faculty Inter-relationships

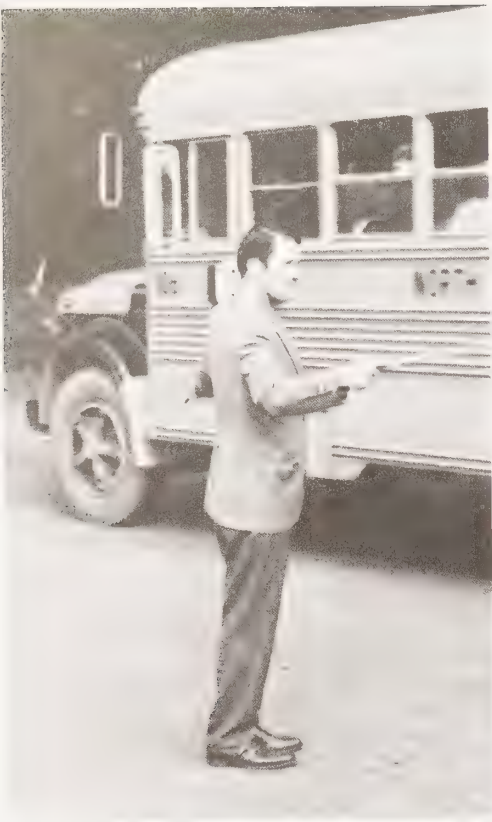

Faced with the responsibility of co-ordinating an educational system for over fifteen hundred students and faculty members, Mr. Miller sought unity and intensified school spirit throughout the year. Making correct, quick decisions was one of the more pressing responsibilities Mr. Miller faced. A rainy day resulted in his cancellation of the Homecoming parade, but after a glimpse at the weather forecast, and taking into consideration the fact that flatbeds had to be returned, a reversal was decided beneficial. Presiding over Monday morning faculty meetings, and evaluating the relationships between students, administration, and community filled much of Mr. Miller's time. Another task placed upon his shoulders was helping to guide the Steering Committee of the Curriculum Committee for the new high school. While carrying out the usual effort required for this year, Mr. Miller faced great responsibilities in organizing the major changes to take place next year in the new high school.

COMPILING SCHEDULES FOR the student body proves to be big problem confronted by Mr. Miller

ALLOWING BUSES TO leave, Mr. Styers takes matters into his own hands and halts city traffic.

OPENING LETTERS, CHECKING TARDIES, and absentees may be boring business to some people; but not to Mrs. Gadd; one of the office employees, who faces her daily work with a humorous disposition.

Office Staff — Nerve Center for Students and Administration

Keeping the school informed and running smoothly became a prime objective of the office staff. Through the combined efforts of Mrs. Gadd, Mrs. Shuford, and Mr. Styers, the students were kept up-to-date on current club meetings, picture schedules, bus routes, along with the usual daily list of "offenders." As assistant principal, Mr. Styers maintained the system's buses in effective rounds every day. The office staff, each in his or her own way, attempted to tie school events, students, and administration into a smoothly working unit.

SURROUNDED by assorted paraphernalia of her occupation, Mrs. Shuford proves her office efficiency.

Preparing for the Future, Guidance Personnel and Students Exchange Costly Ideas

Assistance for bewildered students was readily available in the guidance office through pamphlets and information gained from the counselors. Some of the testing load was removed from students this year as a result of Merit and PSAT merging into one test. Information gained from college representatives on College Night gave students additional information on their prospective colleges. Under the pressing responsibility to provide information for students, Mrs. Glenda Warren became an additional aid. With three counselors to administer to students, the department became an indispensable link between pupil and problem.

Efficient Oil Heating Lessens Work Load for Maintenance

PREPARING LUNCH for students, lunchroom staff member, Dorothy Annas, displays expert cooking.

Long milk lines and the installation of a new oil heater characterized the lunchroom and maintenance staffs this year. Instead of eating a school-cooked lunch, many students preferred chocolate milk over a regular meal. Keeping up with the newly established pollution laws, the maintenance staff found that a conversion from coal to oil heating was necessary. Efficiency, changes, cleanliness, and the task of serving an increasing number of students were all incorporated into these two service departments.

CLASS

Graduation exercises, exhaustive plans for the new high school, drivers' education, class rings, lockers, flex-mod system trial, girls' sports drive, opinion polls, new organizations, car keys, P.E. classes, Snow Queen Pageant, English themes, semester examinations, chemistry experiments, P.A. announcements, college boards, fire drills, criticisms from seniors, senior privileges, LOG Day — all combined to compose the Classes of Hickory High.

Steve Tate — President

Tommy Booth — Vice-President

The Senior Class

Shouldering the responsibility of leading the student body, the Senior Class of 1972 assumed its role as the graduating class of Hickory High. Being the last class to graduate from the existing physical facilities presented the opportunity to aid the administration in planning new curriculum for the new high school. Frequent opinion polls and evaluation brought the voice of students to the attention of the faculty and administrative heads.

Treading the familiar corridors and climbing fire escapes for the last time brought a few sentimental notes from seniors. Participating in school activities such as LOG Day, Award's Day, Snow Queen Pageant, Ugliest-Man-On-Campus, and all the senior privileges recalled and added to many memories. The finish of twelve years of academic study took on special value as preparations for future careers and vocations occupied the minds of graduates.

Organizations and literary staffs relied heavily on seniors for direction. Subdued race relations and improved school spirit were largely supported by the joint efforts of Perry Hodge, Student Council President, and Steve Tate, Senior Class President. Advanced college-oriented studies in business and academic fields completed the education of many seniors. Several courses were offered at Lenior Rhyne College in language and musical fields. Reaching the peak of high school life — the cap and gown parade of graduation — the Senior Class of 1972 issued forth to wrestle with today's challenges.

Young, different ...

Hair too long, clothes not neat,
Rebelling against all that is good and decent
And against us and ours.

And yet, it bothers — strangely — when they say:

When will you let us enjoy our youth
Before the curfew tolls it away?

Will you not let us have our fling

With freedom of mind and spirit?

Will you not allow us our bright colors and long hair

Before society clutches us in its conforming grasp?

When will you learn that education was not intended

As an oppression of us by you?

And finally, when will you see the happiness, the joy,

And stop judging only by the cover?

... Wrongly.

The Junior Class

Relying on one year of experience and maturity, the Junior Class assumed the intermediate position of Hickory High. Organizations and staffs provided an outlet for the presentation of opinions and ideas which demonstrated their leadership qualities. Driving to and from school incurred responsibilities as well as privileges for motoring juniors. Repairs to the "Grove" parking lot were supported by the Junior Class as a reciprocal action for use of the parking facilities.

Coordination of American literature and history courses posed perplexing truths of life in an academic light for thorough questioning and study. College night provided an insight into the future as many juniors and their parents collected pamphlets and literature from informative representatives of area collegiate schools.

Many long and tedious hours of hard, painstaking work were rewarded at Homecoming when the Junior Class float won second runner-up honors in competition. The financial pinch for the Junior-Senior was alleviated with funds raised through the Snow Queen Pageant featuring male beauties vying for the title of Snow Queen.

The guidance department administered standardized achievement tests as an aid for placing students in academic senior courses next year. Approaching the termination of the school year, class rankings were computed for the selection of Junior Marshal. With the actuality of being the first class to graduate from the new high school next spring, the class of 1973 turned their eyes toward the future and their own successes.

The Sophomore Class

Acquainting themselves with a new facade and winding passage ways, the Sophomore class blended into the student body of Hickory High. Twisting stairways and perilous fire escapes confused the underclassmen during the first several weeks, but as they learned their own short cuts and routes to class, the sophomores spurted ahead to fix their place more securely. Election of leaders for Student Council and Sophomore Class completed the first phase of incorporating the new underclassmen into the stream of Hickory High.

The intricacies of organization and staff work were explored by sophomores with the aid of involved juniors and seniors. Constructing their first float and experiencing pride in winning the first runner-up award, sophomores participated in their first Homecoming.

Biological laws and geometric proofs loomed before sophomores during semester examinations. Team participation coordinated with developing a healthy body were two objectives of physical education classes. Their days of instruction plus "behind-the-wheel" application trained sophomores in the principles of safe driving before obtaining a license.

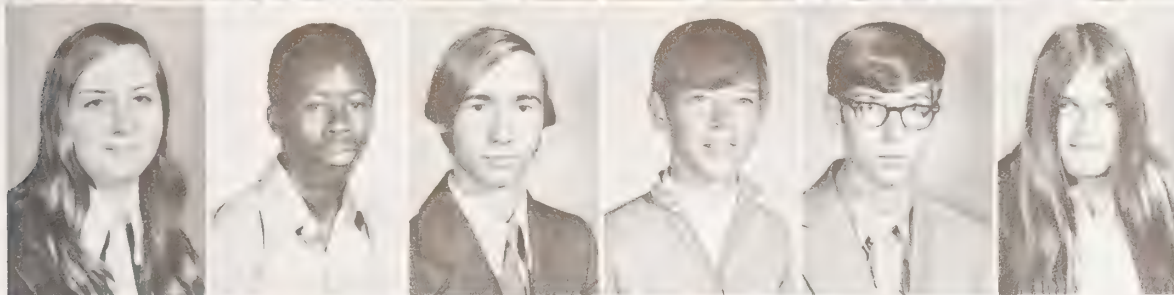

With the end of the school year approaching, sophomores acquired greater maturity and elevation to the Junior Class. As next year's Junior Class in the newly built facilities, the present sophomores will have to acclimize themselves once more before settling into another academic year.

ADVERTISEMENTS

Designing new layouts, selling space to 287 local patrons, meeting new and revisiting old merchants, taking photos, promoting Log sales, rushing to sell ads, last minute proof correction, joking with Mrs. Sigmon, captioning pictures, sorting piles of bills, and writing receipts — a typical life of a Log staff member. The ultimate goal for all these efforts was Log Day 1972. The staff wants to thank all the advertisers for their support.

You'd Smile Too
If You Knew What He Knew

One of these Days . . . Pow! You'll be ready to do your own thing — you know, like, go to work. And when that day comes, there's a company in town you may want to rap with — Drexel Enterprises (Southern Desk to many). Just a friendly bunch of folks, like most, but with one exception — and a biggie at that. Everybody is doing his or her own thing. Really! Secretaries, Draftsmen, Machine Operators. You name it, and we're probably doing it.

Why not stop by — Whenever you're ready — And check us out.

You just could walk away looking like Ol' Smiley there.

Recognition as a printing craftsman with high pay and steady advancement is the only reason you as an individual should consider printing as your career field.
Right?

Wrong!

The printing industry is an ever expanding field of opportunity open to individuals who take personal pride in their work, are proud of their achievements as skilled craftsmen, and are an asset to an industry with an enviable reputation. Do you qualify?

Consider Your Future! Consider Printing.

Reddy To Rock

Reddy Kilowatt never misses a party. In fact, without him, things would be pretty dull. Think of it: no stereos, televisions, electric guitars or ice cubes.

Thanks to Reddy there are over 160 flameless electric servants that make modern living comfortable, economical and fun. When you have a home of your own, there will probably be even more.

"A" RATING

National School Yearbook
Association
Memphis, Tennessee

NEW HICKORY HIGH — for the Class of '72 there will be no new high school. We have ceased to exist as a living organism, as a class, and are now destined to be only a vague and mixed up memory. There is no next year for us; no new curriculum, no new building, no new high school experiences. We are through, our time is over. Yes, two-thirds of the school will have a new curriculum, be in a new building, but where does that leave us?

Our chance to do whatever people are supposed to do as high school students has come and gone. We didn't make "it" this year, but not because we each didn't try, each in his or her own personal way. We didn't make "it" because "it" doesn't exist, "it" is only a myth, a fantasy. "It" is simply a dot in a sea of infinite dots. The dot has gone back into the sea and can no longer be seen as a dot at all. It is important now only as it relates to the next dot — both to us who are leaving and as a challenge to those being left behind as the next dot of Hickory High. You can't make a dot, you can't hold on to it for long either; all you can do is paint it and then it's gone.

Goodbye . . .
